

James Ramsey is the Business Development Manager for The Pascall Company.

He has 30 years of executive level marketing and sales experience in business and outsourcing consulting services. He has held senior management positions for large companies and smaller firms, providing direction, strategy, and tactical leadership for long term client-focused business partnerships.

A graduate of Kansas State, James is a former teacher, who pursued his graduate studies in guidance and counseling, before beginning his business career.

As Business Development Manager for The Pascall Company, James has an in-depth knowledge of today's business world, and understands how an effective Diversity Strategy can improve performance and profitability.